IRVING BACHELLER'S NEW NOVEL THE LIGHT IN THE CLEARING

By the Author of EBEN HOLDEN

R. Bacheller has written THE LIGHT IN THE CLEARING with great skill and heart, and fine and true perception. It is as wholesome and tonic as a wind from out of its own North Woods, and, popular as have been his former books, it deserves a wider reading than any of them, because it is a bigger and better book.—N. Note: In the June number of Harper's Magazine there will be an unusual two-page display of "Crabb's Synonymes" which will show the uncommonly wide response of booksellers all over the country to this new work. This is in line with the special campaign to assist dealers inaugurated by Harper & Brothers.

FOR nearly one hundred years this valuable work has been the authority and helper of all those who know that a word misused may result in a misunderstanding, and a misunderstanding may wreck a business or an empire.

This CENTENNIAL EDITION brings the work up to date. Thousands of new words and their definitions are added. Cross references make it easy to locate a word at once. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education in New York, has written an introduction emphasizing the permanent value of this enduring book.

MORATORIUM, Delaying, Extending, Postponing, Staying

Moratorium, the Latin neuter singular of moratorius—causing delay. In financial affairs a permission or authority granted by a government, corporation, or other large body, to persons, etc., to delay making payment of obligations beyond the time of their maturity; in other words, extending, postponing, or staying the time when payments become due.

A moratorium may be granted for thirty days or longer, according to the exigencies that render the act necessary. In the early part of the European war that broke out in 1914 moratoria were proclaimed by several governments to prevent monetary panics. For a like purpose large stock and other exchanges in the principal financial centers of the world postponed for a time the transaction of any business by closing the exchanges.

"THE BROAD HIGHWAY" Ready June 9

By Jeffery Farnol THE DEFINITE OBJECT

A Romance of New York

Jeffery Farnol wrote "The Broad Highway" in a studio on the West Side of New York. Here, in this new novel, is a compelling story—the result of his lean years in America. The rollicking humor, the quaint philosophy and the delightful characterization are truly Farnol. Adventure and Romance walk hand in hand with Ravenslee on his Quixotic quest through Hell's Kitchen—and Hermione is as charming a heroine as Mr. Farnol has ever pictured. The reader will follow with zest the career of the young millionaire who seeks a purpose in life and finds the definite object.

COPYRIGHTING IN ENGLAND

THE clauses in the British Embargo Act intended to relieve shipping during the campaign of submarine ruthlessness by prohibiting certain importations, including the importation of books "otherwise than in single copies thru the post," have a serious bearing upon the copyrighting of American publications in England. For deposit purposes the law is mandatory as respect the deposit of one copy of the best edition in the British Museum, and this requirement may be fulfilled by mailing the single copy required direct to the British Museum, preferably under registration so that a receipt may be obtained as proof of mailing. Four other copies must be sent respectively to the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin and Edinburgh on specific demand from each and within a month from such demand; and a sixth copy, in the case of books of specified classes only, to the National Library of Wales on similar demand. It can doubtless be arranged that such demands from the universities may be postponed till after the war, but, in any event, single copies may be mailed to each of the institutions should copies be demanded. Of course copies thus mailed may be destroyed en route and technical deposit would not, in such case, be completed; but it may fairly be expected that, by an enabling or confirmatory act after the war, the British Government will recognize proof of mailing as evidence of good faith, and permit the later deposit of substitute copies.

A more serious difficulty is the sending of sufficient copies for sale to make actual publication. There is no specification of the number of copies to be offered to the public, but certainly there should be more than one, and reasonable endeavors should be made to supply copies required by the public. The only suggestion we can make in this respect is that perhaps three copies shall be sent by different mails to the publishers' representatives in London, preferably addressed to three different names, and doubtless the British authorities will not be severe upon this innocent subterfuge. The publishers' representatives can then be authorized to receive orders for further copies to be transmitted to America and to be filled by mailing individual copies to specified addresses. Some American publishers are in fact taking this course.

In the case of books likely to have considerable sale abroad, the remedy, of course, is the actual reprinting of an edition in Great Britain. This is rendered somewhat difficult by the scarcity of paper in England, which is much more pronounced than here, but is, nevertheless, a possible alternative. This would virtually be a matching of our own manufacturing clause, a fair "tit-for-tat" which might ultimately serve the good purpose of opening our eyes to the difficulties of the restriction we have ourselves imposed, and lead to full international copyright in our own country.

It should be noted that the British proclamation excepts from the prohibition of importation "such goods as are imported under license given by or on behalf of the Board of Trade," and the British Copyright Act provides that the Board of Trade may make regulations concerning copyright matter including the deposit of copies. It would seem therefore that possibly the Board of Trade might be competent to make regulations to overcome the present difficulties so far as the importation of copies into England for copyright purposes is concerned, the American publishers have been unable to obtain specific licenses for which they have applied.

A by-path to obtain international copyright in Great Britain has been developed by an enterprising Toronto house which has sent a circular letter to publishers on this side of the border giving instructions for obtaining international copyright thru Canadian channels. It is the fact, as pointed out by this house, that as Canada has not accepted the provisions of the British Code of 1911, its copyright relations are under the former legislation. Under that legislation, copyright in Great Britain was obtained by first publication within the British Empire and registration at Stationer's Hall. The whole question of Canadian copyright, within the Dominion and with relation to the British Empire, is extremely confused and unfortunately the war came on before Canada could carry out its announced purpose of reforming its own copyright arrangements. It is doubtful, at least, whether international copyright in other parts of the British Empire can be obtained by taking advantage of the Canadian suggestion. Stationer's Hall has been abolished, so far as the Code of 1911 provisions are concerned, and whether it still exists for Canadian registry is not known to us. But as the cost is small and the Canadian house has provided adequate and easy methods for completing the transactions, it will do no harm for American publishers to have two strings to their bow. The facilities offered by the Toronto house have in fact been utilized for some time past by certain American publishers. The problem is complicated, however, by the fact that for copyright within Canada printing, tho not type-setting, in the Dominion is required, and this may affect the larger question of copyrighting thru Canada for Great Britain. On the other hand, Newfoundland adopted the code of 1911 and, possibly, if facilities could be arranged, copyrighting for the British Empire thru that selfgoverning dominion during the difficulties of the war may be preferable. In any event, American publishers should take pains to give time for publication both in England and in Canada previous to or simultaneous with publication here.

It is understood that our Department of State is in touch with the British Government in respect to these copyright arrangements, and we shall hope to report later that some modus vivendi, not dependent on indirect methods, is being worked out.

THE war with Germany and the break with Austria involve the question of the continuance of our international copyright relations for the reciprocal protection of literary property here and in the Entente countries. It is sincerely and deeply to be hoped that the United States will adhere fully to the principle of the protection of private property even of "alien enemies" during war, and that our Departments of State and of Justice will see to it that our international copyright treaties do not become "scraps of paper." Altho England made, as we believe, a serious mistake in suspending the property rights of German authors by placing their production in the hands of a public trustee, the authorities of France and apparently also of Germany, tho information from the latter country is not definite, have taken the wider and better view. We believe that authors and publishers alike will desire to give full protection to the works of authors even of enemy countries, and it might be well if the authorities of the American Copyright League, the American Publishers' Copyright League and the Authors' League would give expression to the views of their constituencies in this respect. Let us keep in mind, as the President has emphasized, that we have no quarrel with the German people, but only with the Hohenzollern Imperial Government which has forced war upon the world. and be careful to remember accordingly that rights still exist despite the wrongs of war.

WHILE one man's guess is nearly as good as another's in these days as to what the future will show forth for such an unstable article as print paper, still the opinion of H. H. Reynolds, of the B. D. Rising Paper Co., reprinted elsewhere, seems, despite the fact that he is a paper man, worthy of some consideration. We say "despite the fact" not from any intent of disrespect toward Mr. Reynolds, but because the evidence gathered by the United States Department of Justice has either proved or raised suspicion that the causes of the rise in paper prices with which publishers have had to struggle for three years past have been to a considerable extent artificial and that the method used by paper manufacturers has been the incitement of panic and competitive bidding among the publishers themselves by hints or threats of impending shortage. Not only does Mr. Reynolds predict further increases, but, according to him, there is little probability of a lower general level of prices for several years. All of which may be true but, with the chief members of the "paper trust" indicted on Wednesday of this week for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, it behooves the publisher to go slowly and do some thinking for himself. The outstanding and indisputable fact regarding the paper situation in this country in the last three years is that the publishing industry generally has, because of rising paper costs, faced the most serious difficulties in its history; and that the paper industry, despite its loud lamentations of difficulty and shortage, has been reveling in overflowing prosperity. Evidently the United States Government thinks, in the much-quoted advertising phrase, "there's a reason."

THE cancellation of the annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association scheduled to take place next month in Boston, tho a distinct misfortune from a trade point of view, will doubtless meet with general approval. In general it would seem advisable to continue wherever possible ordinary trade customs and channels of communication, especially those tending to weld the trade into a stronger national body. That the officers of the American Booksellers' Association have seen fit to call off the convention does not mean, however, that they fear for the future of the trade on account of the war or that they are advising or setting a precedent in wholesale retrenchments, but rather that with so large a share of the trade's interests fixed on the affairs of the nation, this is not the moment to get either the best or the most out of the fellowship and trade stimulus which form the most valuable and happy feature of such a gathering. To those who count each year on the convention to give them stimulus for the long pull thru the hot weather we would suggest that they re-read the Convention Numbers of the Publishers' Weekly for the last year or two; something of profit is certain to be gleaned from such rethreshing of old grain. And in the meantime, here's to the biggest convention in the history of the association, the reunion convention in Boston after the war!

CANADIAN HOUSE OFFERS TO MEET COPYRIGHT REQUIRE-ENGLISH MENTS FOR U. S. PUBLISHERS

GEORGE J. McLEOD, LTD., the Toronto publishers and publishers' representatives, have sent a letter to American publishers this week calling attention to their regular department for taking care of the formalities of securing English copyright on books first published in the United States. They have performed this service for certain American publishers for a number of years, and claim that under the copyright acts of 1842 and 1886 they are still able, thru simultaneous first publication in Canada and the United States and subsequent entry in Stationers' Hall, to secure full English copyright for American books.

"We have had numerous inquiries recently from American publishers," the Canadian house writes, "as to what rights they would secure thru publication of their new books in Canada, and as there is an embargo on shipments of books to England, we thought it would be of interest to you to receive the enclosed circular letter, setting out the procedure by which copyright in the British possessions can be secured by publication in Canada.

"We have taken the advice of leading Canadian counsel, specialists in copyright law, regarding this matter, and are advised by them that first publication of American books in Canada, simultaneously with publication in the United States, will still afford the American proprietor copyright protection not only in Canada, but in Great Britain and the other British possessions, and will entitle such proprietor to the benefits of the Berne Conven-

"Our counsel explained this right as depending upon the British copyright acts of 1842 and 1886, which are still the law in Canada. The procedure is the same as before the British copyright act, 1911, was passed as this act does not apply to Canada, but provides that the former British statutes should remain in force in Canada.

"If, therefore, publication is made here on the same day as publication is made in the United States, and entry of the copyright is made at Stationers' Hall, London, England, the same result will be attained as if simultaneous publication were made in England and the United States.

"Our counsel also pointed out to us that American publishers, relying on the copyright act, 1911, and making publication in England some days later than in the United States. have no copyright protection in Canada at all, as the act of 1911 is not operative in Canada.

"In view of the difficulty of shipping books to England, you may think it advisable to make publication in Toronto instead of in London, registering your copyright at Stationers' Hall, in which case we shall be very glad to look after your interests.

"The six copies forwarded to us for copyright purposes are, of course, sent to us free of charge, the only other expense that you will be under is $7.75 for each work published, which includes entry of the copyright at Stationers' Hall, obtaining the official certificate, and payment of the necessary fees on entry and for certificate, also deposit of one copy at the British Museum."

Full details for securing copyright in books and periodicals are given as follows:

GOVERNMENT INDICTS MANUFACTURERS

FIVE members of the Executive Committee of the News Print Manufacturers' Association and two others who have assisted in developing and extending the influence of the association were indicted in New York City on April 12 by the Federal Grand Jury on the charge of having violated the Sherman Anti-Trust law by entering into a combination to limit the output of and to increase the price of news print paper. The five executive members of the News Print Association indicted are: George H. Mead, Chairman of the executive committee of the association, and president of the Spanish River Pulp and Paper Mills, the Lake Superior Paper Company, and of the G. H. Mead Company of Dayton, Ohio; Philip T. Dodge, president of the International Paper Company; Edward W. Backus, president of the Minnesota & Ontario Power Company and of the Fort Frances Pulp and Paper Company; George Chahoon, Jr., president of the Laurentide Company, and manager of the Canada Export Paper Company; and G. H. P. Gould, president of the Gould Paper Company, and the Donnacona Paper Company. The other defendants are: Alexander Smith, a banker of Chicago, and Frank J. Sensenbrenner, vice-president of the Kimberly Clark Company, paper manufacturers.

The case is being handled for the Government by Bainbridge Colby and Mark Hyman, special Assistant United States District Attorneys. Unlike the average Sherman law prosecution, no charges are made against corporations, the prosecutors aiming rather at the particular men whom they believe to be responsible for the conditions of the market.

The indictment charges the members of the News Print Manufacturers' Association with enforcing various rules and regulations for the control of the market and conditions under which manufacturing concerns should transact their business. These are said to include: The stifling of competition between the various members of the trust and the Great Northern Paper Company of Maine in the matter of obtaining new customers, improving the quality of their output, delivery and storage, terms of credit, rates of interest on accounts. contracts, sales methods, payment of return freight on the cores on which paper is wrapped, pay-ment of charges for cartage and allowing claims for damaged paper.

They are also accused of agreeing to engage in simultaneous false representations to their customers of alleged increased cost of manufacture and alleged shortages of paper, and to manufacture insufficient quantities with the object of concertedly working for materially higher prices, to discourage the erection of mills or the installation of new machinery for the manufacture of news print paper, to co-operate in preventing the birth of new concerns.

As the dates of the expiration of contracts approached, according to Mr. Colby, the newspapers were obliged to renew contracts for their current supply, but on asking quotations as to price were met by the refusal of the manufacturers of news print paper to deal with each other's customers.

All members of the association, it is alleged. have been compelled to furnish their executive officers with full data concerning all their contracts, the size of their output, capacity of their plants and general details of their business and to submit to such regulations as the association might direct.

The News Print Association represents about forty-three paper manufacturers and controls a majority of the news print output of the country. It is unincorporated. It had no articles of association, no by-laws, kept no minutes of its meetings, nor was any record kept of the proceedings of its executive committee, which held meetings nearly every The informality of its procedure, according to Mr. Colby, marks the latest phase in the progressive effort to invent some means of evading the Sherman anti-trust law.

PAPER MAN'S VIEW OF THE FUTURE OF THE PAPER SITUATION

THE cost of paper has increased in cents per pound since the beginning of the war. but measured in other commodities, has not gone up as fast as materials have advanced, says H. H. Reynolds of the B. D. have Rising Paper Co. in the current number of the With these fundamental American Printer. conditions, manufacturers of the better grades find themselves doing business on less than a normal profit. 1916 was a profitable year, not because of large profits on the year's products. but because of profits made on materials bought and paper made on the old basis of cost.

The German submarine campaign will further cut down the exports of the allies, including paper. In addition, the mobilization of the best labor in the country is cutting down their manufacture still further. This applies both to England and Canada. The very same factors that caused the rises in price to the present level are at work more potently than ever. With the additional demand from foreign markets, with the supply of pulp from Canada and Scandinavia growing less and less, it is difficult to see how the public can escape an advance.

If the market were restricted, even with the present cost of materials, prices might not advance: but outside of the warring nations the market is practically the whole world.

With reduced margins and greater pressure for product, manufacturers will be obliged to stiffen prices. When this happens it will start a buying campaign with rises comparable to those of a year ago. Certain straws point in this direction. On the Government requirements, among one thousand mills and several hundred jobbers in this country only twenty-nine bidders were secured. Under the present conditions of the market for raw materials manufacturers are afraid to make flat prices. The general cost of living, which increased twenty-seven per cent. since 1915, and fifty-two per cent. since 1914, indicates that labor will not receive less than at the present time.

As to conditions after the war, Mr. Reynolds suggests that not only will general prosperity in this country, due to demands at home and abroad, and the slowing down of foreign paper manufacturing competition thru lack of labor and other causes, help to keep American paper prices up, but that history does not suggest a lower general level of business and prices for several years. In our own Civil War experience, he points out, stocks rose and business boomed, starting in '61 and striking a high level in '64. Then there was some recession, but in a general way business was good and prices high until the panic of '73. The causes now at work are more far-reaching than those of the Civil War, for a much larger part of the world is affected. It may well be, he concludes, that we will be longer in striking the top of business prosperity and prices, and slower in receding.

SUPREME COURT VERDICT FOR MACY IN VICTOR PRICE FIXING SUIT

THE United States Supreme Court handed down a decision for the R. H. Macy Department Store of New York on Monday of this week in the Victor v. Macy price fixing case. The action was brought to restrain the Macy Co. from selling the patented talking machines and records of the Victor Talking Machine Co. The principal question involved in the case was whether, in disposing of its machines by giving a license only for their "use" for royalties (during the patent's term) and not outright title to purchasers, the Victor Co. might thus lawfully regulate and restrict distribution of its products. A secondary question was whether the restriction of distribution thru 7000 "licensed" dealers was an illegal combination and monopoly under the Sherman anti-trust law. The court divided 6 to 3, Justices McKenna, Holmes, and Van Devanter dissenting.

The Victor v. Macy case was dismissed by Judge Hand in March, 1915, and the dismissal later affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Circuit Court, however, granted the Victor Co. leave to file an amended complaint and on September 15 the case was again dismissed by Judge Hough in the District Court of New York. On January 12, 1916, Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the court below and granted an injunction to the manufacturers.* It is this last decision which the decision of this week reverses.

The Macy Co. contended that on receipt of full royalty upon delivery of machines further restriction upon resale prices thru a license was merely an attempt to evade the law. Under the so-called patent monopoly decisions of the Supreme Court in the Dick mimeograph and other cases, it contended that the license giving the right only to use the products was unlawful. In the mimeograph decision, from which Chief Justice White and former Justices Hughes and Lamar dissented, the court held that patentees could prescribe what related articles could be used with patented machines. However, in a patent medicine case, with Justices McKenna, Holmes, Lurton, and Van Devanter dissenting, the court held that patentees, after having once actually sold and lost all interest in a patented article, could not further restrict resale prices.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FRENCH CER-CLE DE LA LIBRAIRIE

THE annual meeting of the Cercle de la Librairie—the central organization of the forty-six French associations of booksellers, printers and dealers in paper, music and prints took place at the rooms of the Cercle in Paris the last of February with sixty-two members present. After calling attention to the approaching National Book Congress in After calling attention to Paris (March 11 to 17), M. Louis Hachette, the president, took up the work of the Cercle in extending the influence of the French booktrade to other countries. Thru M. Dorbon in the United States and thru other agencies elsewhere the French trade has opened up communications since the outbreak of the war with this country, Italy, Spain, England, Russia, Holland, Switzerland, and South Amer-Of particular interest is the plea of M. Hachette that France do not attempt to shut herself up behind a "new Chinese wall" of tariff but that she meet foreign competition squarely by employing better materials and machinery and more aggressive business methods than her rivals.

The most important action of the Publishers' Association during the year was the general inauguration, at the request of the booksellers, of the net system. Every effort has been made to avoid actual price increases and to date the cheap series of classics are practically the only books on which the price has been raised. The French Publishers' Association is strongly organized and the members have acted in unison in both the matter of net prices and of general price increases.

During the past year the following members of the Cercle have died: Michel Engel. head of the important bindery of that name; Henri Heugel, music publisher; Charles-John-Henry Kleinau, for nearly fifty years London representative of the house of Hachette; Henry Chauvin, president of the paper makers' association; Adolphe-Dominique Jourdan, publisher; and Eugène Lecoursonnois, vice-president of the paper makers' association.

^{*} See Publishers' Weekly, January 15, 1916.

The following members were killed in battle: Maxime Choisnet, bookseller; Lucien Peignot, member of the well-known firm of type founders and fourth brother in this family to die in the war; and Henri Bourdel, connected with the house of Plon.

BOOKSELLERS' CONVENTION CAN-CELLED BECAUSE OF WAR

THERE will be no convention of the American Booksellers' Association in Boston next month. This decision was arrived at at a meeting in Boston on Thursday morning of this week of the president of the association, the chairman of the Board of Trade and the Executive Committee of the Boston Convention, who decided that in view of the present crisis in our national affairs it is inadvisable to hold any regular convention with its attendant festivities. In its place, the annual business meeting will be held on May 15th and 16th in New York City. It was further agreed that the next regular convention be held, as originally planned, in Boston.

AUTHORS' LEAGUE ELECTS 1917 EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

THE annual meeting and dinner of the Authors' League took place on April 10. Resolutions upholding the President and woman suffrage were adopted and the following Executive Committee was elected for 1917: Samuel Hopkins Adams, Gertrude Atherton, Will Payne, Robert Grant, Charles Dana Gibson, Meredith Nicholson, Jesse Lynch Williams, Walter Prichard Eaton, Ernest Poole, and Kate Jordan Vermilye.

COUNTRY LIFE PRESS OPENS FINE BINDERY

France has for generations produced some of the best bookbinding in the world. men as G. Canape, Chambolle-Duru, S. David, Charles Lanoë, Marius Michel, G. Mercier, André Mare and René Kieffer are among those who have made France famous in this respect. Since the war, however, many of the old families of binders have been broken up and the art has suffered great changes.

With the purpose of bringing together distinguished members of the craft to afford them opportunity to work under the most advantageous conditions, Doubleday, Page & Co. have invited three French binders whose families have been famous among the best binders in France to make their home and continue their work in Garden City. They are Henri Hardy, Leon Maillard and Gaston Pilon. It is planned to add other experts of reputation and distinction from France at a later date. They will use as their imprint "The French Binders, Garden City."

UNITED STATES EXTENDS MECHANICAL MUSIC RIGHTS TO NEW ZEALAND

UNDER proclamation of February 9, 1917, the United States extended full protection under section I(e) of the act of 1909 to musical works by composers of New Zealand, including "copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work." This action on the part of the United States followed the New Zealand Order in Council of December 1, 1916, extending the protection of the New Zealand copyright act of 1913 to the works of American citizens.

BOOK-TRADE ASSOCIATIONS NEW JERSEY BOOKSELLERS TO PERFECT ORGANIZATION

FOLLOWING up the tentative plans for a New Jersey Booksellers' Association formulated at the meeting in Princeton last summer, the committee, composed of C. L. Traver, of Trenton; W. R. Reed, of New Brunswick; and C. Whitney Darrow, of Princeton, is sending out this week an invitation to the booksellers of the State to enroll in the new organization. The plan as outlined last summer is to hold meetings at least once a year at which the dealers can get together socially, exchange ideas and take definite action on matters which concern them. The annual dues will be $2 for the present.

The New Jersey committee is also sending out a brief series of questions to every one in the State who carries a stock of books; thru the replies to this questionnaire, the committee hopes to secure an accurate canvass of the State, and local literature, as well as that of the American Booksellers' Association, will be sent out to these dealers from time to pool as a young man but came to this country in 1870 after the Civil War had seriously affected his Liverpool business. He found his way to Albany where he opened a second-hand book-shop. His business grew rapidly and in 1886 he also started a shop in New York City at the corner of Astor Place and Broadway, at that time the hub of the metropolitan booktrade. He also had a shop for a season or two at Saratoga Springs. Mr. McDonough was known to a host of booklovers as a bookman of unwearied industry and indomitable perserverance. For several years he had shown the effects of his advancing age and during the past winter suffered from the effects of a cataract growing over his sight which caused him great distress and in the end crushed his

"THE DEFINITE OBJECT," a new novel by Jeffery Farnol, author of "The Broad Highway," is announced by Little, Brown & Co. for June 9. It is described as a romance of New York written in Mr. Farnol's characteristic romantic vein and has not appeared serially.

KIPLING is one of those satisfactory authors from the publisher's standpoint - whose books, fifteen years after publication, are more popular than ever. "The Jungle Book" has recently gone into its thirty-eighth edition, the "Second Jungle Book" into its twenty-fifth and "Captains Courageous" into its twentysecond.

THE NEW YORK World is buying up old papers at six copies for a cent and employing a ten per cent. mixture of this old paper in the manufacture of its news print. The new ninety per cent. pure paper is said to have a better color than the all-new-stock paper formerly used and effects a saving in both wood pulp and sulphite.

To prove to the bookseller that it is worth dollars and cents to him to display Albert Payson Terhune's "Dollars and Cents," Robert J. Shores will send any bookseller making such a display a framed reproduction of the jacket with a real live dollar bill and a shiny penny under the glass.

EXTENSIVE EXPERIMENTAL TESTS are being made at the Riverside Paper Company No. 2 Division mill of the American Writing Paper Company for the manufacture of de-inking news print paper. Samples of this new paper are now being offered the paper trade in any quantity desired, either on rolls or flat.

THE EMPLOYEES of the J. F. Tapley Co., the well-known New York trade bindery, presented Mr. Wessmann, the president of the company, with a large American flag on Monday of this week and the flag was officially raised over the building at high noon while a chorus of the employees sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY has issued an emergency call for $50,000 to provide New Testaments bound in khaki for all soldiers and sailors. The society has already co-operated with the Sunday School Association and the Young Men's Christian Association in the distribution of about 1,000,000 copies to soldiers in Europe and 100,000 to men on the Mexican border.

WITH THE CONSENT of certain authors, Sidgwick & Jackson, the English publishers, have arranged to pay their royalties (due at the end of the quarter) in War Loan. An author to whom £100 is due will thus receive a Bearer Bond for £100 (representing £95) and £5 in cash. This arrangement has enabled the publishers to apply for £1000 of the 5 per cent. War Loan.

WITHIN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS after the President's speech before the joint session of Congress on April 2 Doubleday, Page & Co. had it in type and were preparing the announcement of an edition of this message in permanent form. The little book is published in both boards and leather, at fifty cents and one dollar each, and is ready for distribution to-day. All proceeds from its sale will be given to the Red Cross.

"The South American Year Book," a standard reference work on South America, is hereafter to be edited and published in the United States by the Americas Publishing and Printing Corporation. Heretofore this work has been published by the Louis Cassier Co., Ltd., London. It is the intention of the new owners to increase the value of the Year Book for the people of this country by editing it from an American standpoint.

Some readers will doubtless heave "I, Mary MacLane," the new book by the author of "The Story of Mary MacLane," into a corner with a disgusted ejaculation that Mary MacLane is a disgusting poseur, but many others will read on and on and still on, amazed and baffled by the trenchant first-personal thrusts of this woman with the autobiographical habit. "I, Mary MacLane" will be published April 23 by the Frederick A. Stokes Co.

In "The Preacher of Cedar Mountain," to be published by Doubleday, Page & Co. on April 27, Ernest Thompson Seton has written his first novel. The story deals with the conversion of Jim Hartigan, the young preacher of Cedar Mountain, and his later fortunes in a little frontier town. Always by his side is the great motive force of his life—a woman with the knack of taking life and the gifts of fortune on her own terms.

A TIMELY DORAN PUBLICATION is "Rifles and Shotguns" by Warren H. Miller, editor of Field & Stream, Spanish War veteran and a veteran hunter. While the work is devoted particularly to the use of the rifle and shotgun on big game and feathered game, such chapters as "Four centuries of firearms," "Rifle mechanics," "The U. S. military rifle," "Rifle sights" and "Cartridges and tables" contain much of vital interest to the soldier as well as to the sportsman.

THE BIBLIOPHILE SOCIETY has just issued two hundred or more of Stevenson's poems, discovered and edited by George S. Hellman, and now offered to the public for the first time in two handsome volumes with etched portraits and facsimile reproductions of Stevenson's handwriting. These intimate and self-revealing poems constitute an autobiography in verse, covering the period of Stevenson's productivity—from 1860 to 1894—and should in no sense be placed in the category of rejected poems.

It is no longer regarded as "small town stuff" to read books on how to make good, as the large sales of such books to-day everywhere attest. "How to Make Good," a useful little book by a business man published by the Reilly & Britton Co., adopts the time-saving plan of putting the key sentence in every paragraph in bold face type. Thus after the entire book is read the man who tries to keep himself "keyed up" can run thru these bold face sentences in fifteen minutes from time to time to see just what he is or is not doing.

THE MACMILLAN Co. has just published a work on Brazil by Miss L. Elwyn Elliott, the Literary Editor of the Pan-American Magazine—which is not to be confused with the Pan-American Union Bulletin. Miss Elliott is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and for years has been a constant traveler and skilled observer in the South and Central American fields. Her book on "The Opening Up of Brazil" is comprehensively planned, including divisions on its history, colonization, social conditions, transportation, industries, finance and commerce.

IRVING BACHELLER'S new novel, "The Light in the Clearing" (Bobbs-Merrill), seems to be a happy combination of those ingredients so welcome to the bookseller: a good novel, by a good author, in a good jacket, with good illustrations. Three of the characters in this new historical novel by the author of "Eben Holden" are drawn from actual historical characters; the others are purely imaginative, tho, as the author points out in his preface, "there were Grimshaws and Purvises and Binkses and Aunt Deels and Uncle Peabodys in almost every rustic neighborhood in those days."

It is fit honor to good old George Crabb that Harper & Brothers should bring out a Centennial Edition of his worthy "English Synonymes Explained." In this Centennial Edition nothing has been omitted from the master's explanations of his chosen words and his style of presentation has been followed as closely as intervening conditions would permit. His original words have been supplemented by a large number of words which have since grown into the language, and a feature of this edition is the copious use of cross references thruout the body of the work.

MANY MAGAZINE READERS have a slight acquaintance with Peter Sanders thru various episodes of his career contributed by Gordon Hall Gerould. The complete story of his life is told in "Peter Sanders, Retired," published by the Scribners. For many years the prosperous and powerful conductor of a famous gambling-house—a quiet, decorous mansion in which fortunes were won or lost without any outside disturbance—this scholarly gentleman and book collector of impeccable taste has been at last pounced upon by a zealous, reforming district attorney. Then begin his real adventures.

In the intricate organization of modern warfare there are places for thousands unable for one reason or another to go into the front line trenches. Among such openings, for which some thousands of men will probably be needed in the next few months, are those in the quartermaster corps. An instruction manual for prospective quartermaster corps reserve officers will be issued on April 28 by George U. Harvey of New York, the publisher of Capt. Parker's popular "An Officer's Notes." It is by Major W. A. Dempsey, Q.M.C., O.R.C., and consists of a series of practical lectures on the work of the quartermaster department.

THE APPROACH of spring sends motor car owners to their "Blue Books," and the Automobile Blue Book Publishing Co. has a revised series of 1917 "Blue Books" ready for them. On April 24, seven volumes will be ready, as follows: "New York State and adjacent Canada"; "New England and Maritime Provinces"; "New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and West Virginia"; "Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky"; "Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Missouri"; "Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana"; and "Pacific Coast States." The volumes on "New York Metropolitan 100 Mile Radius" and "Chicago Metropolitan 100 Mile Radius" will be ready May 24 while the "Southeastern States" volume is ready now.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT of the publication of the new Jewish Bible, in preparation for a quarter of a century, was made at the twentyninth annual meeting of the Jewish Publication Society of America in Philadelphia, March 25. Two editions are ready for release, one a popular edition designed for congregations and Sabbath schools, and the other an India paper edition, interleaved with blank pages for the use of scholars and students. A quarto edition for pulpit use will be issued if the demand justifies. Now that the Bible is published it is intended to publish commentaries to the Bible which will explain it in the light of Jewish interpretation, thought, and tradition. The Society also announces the coming publication of the second volume of Dubnow's "History of the Jews in Russia and Poland," the manuscript of which was long held up in Russia by the censors of the vanished bureaucracy. President Simon Miller and the other officers of the Society were chosen to succeed themselves for the ensuing year.

"WITH THE FORMAL RECOGNITION of a state of war generally discounted," says Dun's Review for April 7, "business proceeds without semblance of disturbance, tho with appreciation of the economic changes that must in-evitably follow. Additional stimulus to industrial activity is foreshadowed by present and prospective government requirements, and for some time preparations have been under way to effect the necessary readjustments in both production and prices. The exact nature and extent of Federal financing is as yet undetermined, but in banking circles the pending needs are awaited with composure, as funds have been prudently kept in a liquid position and the nation's monetary resources are unand skilfully organized. such solid facts in evidence, faith in the future remains a conspicuous feature and while there are elements of uncertainty in the commercial situation, forward plans testify to sustained confidence in the stability of the leading markets. Many new enterprises have started and the domestic and export demand taxes the capacity of most mills and factories, with the full employment of labor and the further wage advances tending to offset the extreme costs of necessities. Signs already appear of the hardening tendencies in money which many people have expected. change in conditions was clearly foreshadowed, tho much additional gold has recently come in from Canada, and rates may logically tighten further when the form and extent of prospective government financing is definitely determined. Yet no one now anticipates disturbance in this quarter and the strength of the situation is demonstrated by the fact that preparations for the disbursement of over $200,000,-000 in April dividends and interest have passed almost unnoticed."

Early in the tale, Silas Wright becomes the ideal of the young hero, Barton Baynes, and gives the book its keynote of simple and high-souled Americanism. Barton was the only witness of a highway murder, which came very close to the money lender of the county. This brought Barton and his family under the persecution of Grimshaw, who in his turn was followed about and cursed by "Roving Kate." Barton stood firm as a witness for the state. Later he had his reward as secretary to Silas Wright. Barton's love story dated from his childhood, but it is not the main interest of his story.

How would one expect a chap to act when he learned that his father had sent him thru college on embezzled money? That was the crisis that confronted Tom Leigh. His tather told him he had done it because he wanted him to have a good start!
Tom believed it was done for love, so he started to work to pay it back. It seemed impossible to get it made up before something or other would disclose the theft. Tom had some ideals about co-operation, and the new job paid him well to make them facts.
Tom was very happy working them out. Then came the time when the money could be paid back, but the truth would become known. But not so fast—it was well Tom had not told even Marion Willets about his father's "disgrace."

A brilliant young rabbi of liberal views is called to Baltimore to a congregation of wealthy Jews. They are comfortable in their gold and in their faded, rather unorthodox Jewism. Philip Graetz attempts to awaken them spiritually; but he himself is sucked into the same prideful viewpoint. One of Graetz's main ideals is the union of all Jews, and he learns Yiddish to gain access to those in the slums. His own struggle reaches its climax in a strike when he fails to bring the factions together, because his talk of brotherhood has been taken as platitudes. At the end of the strike, no one concerned wishes to appear as giving in, and all agree that Graetz shall have the credit for settling it. Thus by a stroke of irony the rabbi finds himself famous. famous.

GOOD BOOK MAKING vs. THE OTHER KIND

Most publishers prefer to maintain a high standard of quality in their books, especially when the cost is no higher. The following from the author of a book which we recently manufactured in its entirety illustrates the point:

"The books have reached me, and I want to thank you for the personal interest you have taken in putting out such an attractive volume. It seems to me to be about the last word in bookmaking art. I am more than pleased with the appearance of the book. Every suggested change which I made in the proof has been faithfully and correctly carried into the book. I appreciate the kindness you have shown in looking after the matter in such a careful way."

PROMPT APPRECIATION

accorded a great work of fiction, which strikes an entirely new note in American literature,-Selected by H. W. Boynton in the NEW YORK NATION as one of "the outstanding novels of the season."

A BRILLIANT PIECE OF WORK

New York Times: "A brilliant piece of work.... To enumerate the well-handled scenes and the admirably portrayed characters would be simply to give a list of the incidents and people in the book. . . . A story of distinction well worth attention."

OF EXCEPTIONAL QUALITY

Boston Transcript: "A novel of exceptional quality. It brings to life a little-studied aspect of our civilization. Philip Graetz, in his contrast with the thoroughly utilitarian and ultra-practical David Gordon, is a fine type of honesty and loyalty."

AN ALMOST UNCANNY GIFT

New York Tribune: "The author has an almost uncanny gift of piercing to the marrow of human motives, and there is in his writings an incalculable element prophetic of greater things to come."

HE CHOSEN PEOPLE

By SIDNEY L. NYBURG -

Author of "The Conquest" which was selected as one of the ten best novels of 1916.

THE INTEREST IS UNFLAGGING

Baltimore Evening Sun: "The interest is unflagging from beginning to end. It is absorbingly interesting... It is no mere romantic tale, no shallow study.... It is the most important and finely conceived of all of Mr. Nyburg's published works."

EXPECTATIONS AMPLY FULFILLED

New York World: "Readers of 'The Conquest,' who now turn to 'The Chosen People, will find their expectations as to the author amply fulfilled. Mr. Nyburg has brought to his new story fresh power of thought and analysis to reinforce the graphic quality in his style. He has written living, stirring chapters."

STRIKES A NEW NOTE

Baltimore News: "Sidney Nyburg strikes a new note in American fiction in his latest novel. . . . The Rabbi's spiritual struggle is brought to a climax by a great strike of the clothing operators. . . . It is a fine stroke of irony; the Rabbi awakes to find himself famous. . . The author handles the love theme with skilful prevision of its himself famous. . . part in the story."

NO ONE CAN AFFORD TO MISS THIS

Philadelphia Inquirer: "Certainly one of the most important novels of the year. We insist that no one who wants to keep up with the best of modern fiction can afford to miss this book. A fine study of life in the melting pot of America so written that it appeals to all."
